The psychodynamic and the neurobiological pathway of the technique of the total removal of the resistance (can briefly be summarized)

1. Major intensive mobilization of the transference component of the resistance

2. Optimum removal of the neurobiological pathway of anxiety

3. The major intensive mobilization of the neurobiological and somatic pathway of primitive sadistic murderous rage

4. Major and intensive mobilization of the neurobiological pathway of guilt and actual experience of guilt in the transference. To elaborate further we have major extensive mobilization of the neurobiological pathway of the murderous rage in the transference. And we also have a major and extensive mobilization of neurobiological pathway of guilt.

5. We have 4 to 5 visual imageries. In this paper I am describing the 5 visual imageries of the case “Murder In The Parking Lot” which will be presented at The 37th International Congress October, 2016. In visual imagery one we see the visual imagery of the sadistically murdered therapist. In visual imagery two the sadistically murdered therapist has dark coloured eyes changes and becomes light blue eyes in 1/1000 seconds we have visual imagery three. We have sadistically murdered mother with blond hair and light blue eyes. This is the indicator that the psychosomatic pathway of the eye is in full operation. In 1/1000 seconds we have a very extensive passage of guilt with all the detailed characteristics of the passage.
of guilt. After the passage of the guilt we have the visual imagery of the portrait of love. With a loud voice “mom, mom, mom, I love you mom, I love you mom.” Continuation of further passage of guilt, grief, and other affect-laden unconscious feelings. These passages of visual imageries which is called “Pensement Les Images” has been the subject of extensive research on the metapsychology of the unconscious since March, 1968. The first case was “The Case Of The Metal Pipe Man.”

The conclusion of long-term research on the science of the metapsychology of the dynamic unconscious clearly demonstrates: one, that “Pensement Les Images” of 1/1000 seconds is the indicator that the therapeutic process has achieved structural; intrapsychic structural change and clearly demonstrates that the projective anxiety has undergone extensive structural changes. I elaborate further on our research on the science of the metapsychology of the unconscious; “Pensement Les Images” 1/1000 seconds from one visual image to another is a solid indicator of structural and intrapsychic structural change. It indicates that we have removed structural impairment of the unconscious defensive organization. Two, major structural changes in the total removal of projective anxiety. Three Intrapsychic structural change from the dominance of the resistance to the major dominance of the transference component of the resistance. Four, Dynamic unconscious has sufficient access to the presence of the powerful dynamic system of the transference component of the resistance. I would like to refer you to my publication on the psychoanalytic technique of the major mobilization of the transference component of the resistance.
